"Hazing."

Certain young gentlemen of the Sophomore class in Brown University, having been themselves put through a course of "hazing," as the term is, at their entrance upon the college course, by their "illustrious predecessors," lately tried the same game upon some innocent Freshmen in that venerable institution. This "hazing," it appears, consists of smoking the victims out of their rooms with tobacco,—spraying water upon their persons,—and other elegant amusements of the sort—all of which are doubtless very pleasant to the perpetrators, but not quite so agreeable to the other party.

If this case, it seems the Freshmen, or somebody on their behalf, reported to their friends the treatment they had received, and no little excitement was created in consequence. The College authorities were appealed to, who took the offending parties to task about it, and required them to desist from such performances in future—which, being refused, the principal offenders were forthwith expelled from the university. But, upon "further second thought," the "hazens" concluded that they had gone too far, and upon making the amende honorable, the edict of expulsion was promptly rescinded, and the young gentlemen returned. So, there is peace again in Providence.

INHUMANITY OF A FATHER.—Recently in the Court of the Lord Mayor of London, a rather respectably circumstanced, named Robert Johnson, was brought up on a summons for neglecting to provide for his family, when revelations of his conduct to his sons and daughters were made of the most revolting character. One of his daughters had attempted suicide. When rescued and taken before the Lord Mayor, she acknowledged that her father's unkindness was the cause of the attempt. On the death of his wife, he had notified his children that if they continued in his house they must pay rent; had refused to acknowledge them or provide for them in any way, and had repeatedly told the daughters "go upon the streets, and the boys to steal for a living." Yet he was able to maintain them. When his daughter, who was injured for life in her suicidal attempt, was taken to the hospital, after repudiating him severely and regretting that he could not more severely punish him, sent him to prison for a month, and ordered that he should be compelled to maintain his children.

THE BEAT OF THE TWO.—A farmer and his son Hans having been to market in the next town, and disposed of their load of potatoes, got ready to return home. The father laid himself comfortably down and commenced sleeping while Hans drove the wagon.

Soon Hans commenced thinking about the lay peas and pork his mother had promised to keep for him until his return, snatched his lip and drove the horses faster. The old man lifted himself upon his elbow and exclaimed:
"Hans, don't drive those horses so fast. They had a good, full load this morning," and laid himself down and snored again.

A little time the horses were driven slower, and then Hans thought of the pork and peas, and imagining that the old man was asleep, he whipped up the horses at full speed.

The old man sat up in the wagon a second time, and exclaimed:
"Hans, how many times do you want me to tell you not to drive those horses so fast? Oh, boy, if I would have done so with my father!"

"A strange father you must have had," replied Hans.

"What?" cried the father. "Boy, I had a great deal better father than ever you had."

During the absence of the Rev. John Parker, of Carmel, Putnam county, a few weeks since, his residence was broken into and a number of articles were stolen therefrom. A few days ago, the reverend gentleman had again occasion to "leave home." During the night, a young English girl, a domestic in the house, was awakened by a noise proceeding from the next room. She arose and armed herself with a corn-knife—a formidable weapon—went boldly into the next room to learn the cause, when she saw a huge black arm thrust through the window into the room, attempting to reach the fastening inside the shutter. She ordered the intruder to leave, and the ordering being unheeded, the corn-knife descended with great force upon the arm, between the wrist and the elbow, inflicting a fearful gash. The negro did not wait for further orders, but left the house and ran across a meadow, followed by the brave girl with the bloody corn-knife in her hand. The next morning, traces of blood were tracked to a considerable distance. The negro remained quiet all last week, when Dr. Adams was called to dress the wound, and found that the limb would have to be amputated, for want of timely care.

Boston is always experimenting in pavements. A few years ago they paved Washington street with blocks of wood. This rotted, and they laid down an iron pavement. This has rotted, and now the whole street is interrupted by pavers laying down the old-fashioned cobble-stones.

LOCAL NEWS.

WANTED—SOMETHING TO SHARPEN.—It strikes us, somehow, that things are getting awful dull and gloomy here, and our people are lapsing into that torpid state for which the inhabitants of this old ocean town are noted during nine months of the year. The temporary excitement attending upon the fitting out of the trading fleet for Cuba has about subsided, and as the icy arms of Winter close around us, the prospect is, that so far as business is concerned, it will be confined principally, and almost wholly, to supplying the immediate wants of the inhabitants.

Socially, the prospect is gloomy indeed unless some wide-awake spirits among us, shall take the matter in hand, and devise ways and means to enliven the time through the months that intervene between this and Spring. It is not elevating to the social nature of mankind, to squat around in grocery stores and other places of resort to discuss the private affairs of their fellow citizens. The knowledge with which their minds will there become stored, is not of that particular kind calculated to enrich them; on the contrary it is degrading and of a mischievous tendency.

We need something to stir up the people—to draw them closer and cement the bond of union that is necessary to the maintenance of a well regulated community. What shall it be? There are leading minds among us. Let them devise something, and make suggestions through our columns, which will always be open for such. It is not necessary to send abroad for the means to accomplish this—we have them within our own borders. We have seen country towns with a population of a thousand to fifteen hundred, where the neighbors were from half a mile to two miles apart, where the social enjoyments in the winter months were more plentiful than in Newport; and for no other reason than that the people were disposed to avail themselves of the means of social enjoyment afforded them.

It is unfortunate for us, as a community, that we are dependant, in a great measure, on a business that only flourishes during about three months in a year, leaving a portion of the inhabitants the balance of the time, with not enough to do, as the saying is, to keep them out of mischief. This misfortune must be overcome, if Newport would rid herself of the ennui that settles down upon its inhabitants with each returning winter. Let those who have the well being of the community at heart "set their wits to work" and tell us what this shall be.

Try for a day, I beseech you, says Jean Paul Richter, to imagine yourself in an apostrophe, and compare the day in which you have rooted out the weed of dissatisfaction with that on which you allowed it to grow up; and you will find your heart open to every good motive, your life strengthened, and your breast armed with a panoply against every trick of fate, truly, you will wonder at your own improvement.

A magnificent diadem has been designed in London for the Princess Voronoff, of Russia. It is so formed as to be convertible at pleasure into a necklace of enormous size, each surmounted with brilliant of smaller dimensions, and connected by elastic joints composed of stones of the same material, the whole being set in silver. The value of the ornament is upwards of £20,000. The diamonds have long been their looms in the Voronoff family.

At a debating club in a certain town in Connecticut, the question up for discussion one evening was—"Which is the most potent element, fire or water?" The first man upon the floor was Uncle Zeb York, a perfect original character, who at once settled the question to the entire satisfaction of all, thus: "My friends, just you take a swamp apple, which you all know is full of water, and hold it in your mouth while, then take it out and put in a bell pepper; I rather reckon then you will find out pretty quick which has got the most apunk in it!"

Always remember that you dress to fascinate others, not yourself.

The Annapolis Gazette says a gentleman of that place—better known for his wealth than his liberality—was requested to aid in the erection of a church. The subscription book was placed in his hands. He looked at it unthinkingly and earnestly, and handed it back with the remark: "No, sir! I will not give anything; not half so many people go to bed now as ought to go!"

The titles were queer that they put to their books in old times. One Joshua Sylvester wrote a poetical tract against tobacco, entitled, "Tobacco battered, and the Pipers shattered about their ears that idly idolize in snath a vanity, by a Volley of Hot Shot thundered from Mount Helicon."

UPPER HAZEL.—People have for centuries been afflicted with bald heads, and the only remedy, heretofore known, has been through an abominable rite. By recent discoveries of Professor Wood these articles are being at last dispensed with, but a great many persons still patronize them, because they have been so often imposed upon by Hair Tonics of different kinds. To all such persons we earnestly make the request, that they will try once again, for in Wood's Restorative there is nothing such as in Foul's. We know of a lady who was bald, who used the article a short time, and her head is now covered completely with the finest and most beautiful curls imaginable. We know of numerous cases where hair was rapidly falling out, which it restored in greater perfection than it ever had been before. It is safe.

It is the duty of every one to improve their personal appearance, though some may differ in regard to the ways of doing it; but every one will admit that a beautiful head of hair, either in man or woman, is an object much to be desired, and there are no means that should be left untaken to obtain such a consideration.—(Woman's Advocate, Philadelphia.)

Cochecton, Ohio, Nov. 17, 1856.

O. J. WOOD & CO.—Gents: As I have been engaged in selling your Hair Restorative the last season for one of your local agents (R. C. Mackinson,) and having experienced the beneficial effects of it myself, I would like to obtain an agency for it.

State in the West, and the State of Ohio make such an arrangement, as I am entitled is nothing equal to it in the United States, for restoring the hair. I have been engaged in the Drug business, for several years, and have sold various preparations for the hair, but have found nothing that restores the secretory organs or invigorates the scalp as well as yours. Being fully convinced that your restorative is what you represent it to be,
 I would like to engage in the sale of it, for I am satisfied it must sell.
 Yours truly,
 S. T. STOCKMAN.

LOTTERIES.—The well known Maryland Consolidated Lotteries, of which M. France & Co. are the managers, are chartered by the state of Maryland, and a commissioner elected by the people, who is sworn to superintend and certify that everything connected with them is done in a strictly proper manner, and that the interests of parties who reside at a distance are as well protected as if they themselves were present, at the drawing. Another fact which the manager call attention to, is that all persons have a legal right to send orders for tickets to Maryland, as lotteries are legalized by special law in that State. A lottery is drawn every day in that month. If no particular class is named, orders are filled in the first drawing to take place after the communication comes. And the prices of tickets vary from $1.00 to $20.00. Tickets however, sent under the money for the same is retained with the original. The drawings are upon the principle of the number on each ticket (after the Haverplan), and Tertiary cost only. Prizes vary in amount from $25 to $300,000. All orders for tickets or packages will receive prompt attention, and the drawing mailed to all purchasers immediately after it is over. Address:
